

Table of contents

Preface	i
Introduction	1
The aim of bilingual education	1
Teacher competencies for CLIL	3
Background to CLIL	8
Integrating content and language	12
What constitutes content in a CLIL context	12
‘Three languages’ in CLIL	14
4Cs Framework in CLIL	18
The importance of academic language	20
From input to intake	23
Scaffolding in bilingual science classes	26
Bloom’s taxonomy	33
Attention	37
Attention-getting criteria	37
Attention types	39
Active learning	41
Long-term memory	43
Strategies that help CLIL instruction	47
Asking the right questions	51
Question content	55
Understanding vs. mechanical learning	57
Learning from experience	60
Assessment	62
Assessment for understanding	64
Formative assessment	65
Self- and peer-assessment	71
Assessing language	75
Instructional approaches	80
Inquiry-based instruction	80
Task-based learning	85
Project-based learning	86

7 steps of the project design process	90
Cooperative learning	96
Differentiation	103
Multiple intelligences	107
Planning in CLIL	113
CLIL in elementary school	120
Materials and material development	125
7 principles of CLIL material design	127
Guidelines for designing the material	130
Glossaries	136
Graphic organisers	138
Appendix 1 – Planning for understanding	145
Appendix 2 – Knowledge types and Bloom’s categories	146
Appendix 3 - Additional resources	147
Appendix 4 - Suggested solutions	152
Bibliography	157